BIG SHOT

Photographer Greg Salvatori, whose book Beards of New York celebrated the hirsute hunks of the Big Apple, has opened a gallery in Whaler's Wharf where he'll showcase colorful and provocative images in four shows this summer. 237 Commercial, gregsalvatori.com.

EARTHLY DELIGHTS

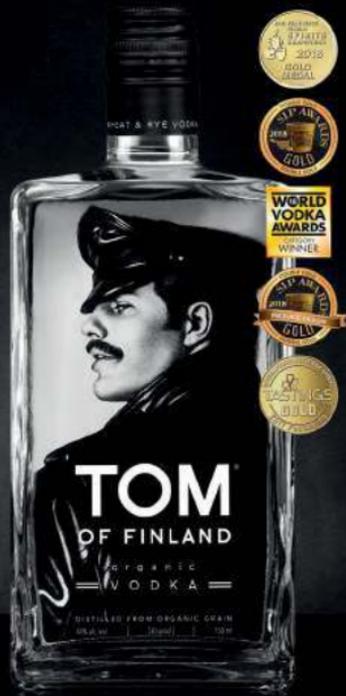

Tween the Tides moves into Street Eats' old spot in the Aquarium Mall. Chef Bethany Gregory offers fresh international and American street foods with many vegan and vegetarian options. Marinated seitan and tofu, chicken shawarma, lamb gyros, pork souvlaki and falafel. Also: a picnic basket rental service (for the beach!) 11-9 daily. 207 Commercial.

FOOT FETISH

You may have seen Respoke's bright espadrilles, jeans, jackets, and bucket hats at Bergdorf's or Bloomingdale's. Designer Michael Tonello, author of Bringing Home the Birkin, has opened his first brick-and-mortar shop at 145 Commercial. Peter Som, Carson Kressley, and Ken Fulk are big fans. 115, 7 days a week.

ON TAP

Our first onsite brewery Provincetown Brewing Company opens early July, offering their hazy New England pale ale Bearded Mistress, and rotating suds on tap with wings, sandwiches, breakfast fare and more. Part of PBC's profits will aid local arts-oriented, queer, and environmental charities, and they plan to be year-round. Do good and drink up. 8a-11p daily. 141 Bradford.

THE CLUB

Ptown's longtime Big Boo, comic and actress Lea DeLaria (Orange is the New Black) welcomes you to The Club, her intimate live music 'supper club' in the former Pied Bar featuring A-list entertainment, light bites and cocktails. Shows nightly at 6 and 8 (no cover after 10:15), and a weekend live music buffet brunch. 193a Commercial.

PREMIERE PARTY

EDGE OF THE EARTH

Find some new treasures at Outermost. A mix of art + objects that reflect the colors and textures, feel and spirit of the Outer Cape. Outermost's curators seek out the nature-inspired and the hand-worked, and value the time-tested and the weather-worn. A unique mix of historic and modernist sensibilities. 427 Commercial, outermosthome.com.

BODY CONSCIOUS

Brian Buckley opened Complete Pilates Studio and sports therapy clinic in January and offers Pilates reformer, tower, and mat classes, as well as deep sports massage, human alignment and postural analysis. Personal sessions are also available. 368c Commercial, completepilatestherapy.com.

ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE

The newly-renovated AWOL hotel (taking over what was known to old-timers as the Inn at the Moors) looks out on the marshland's spectacular and ever-changing show of sun and tide. Part of the Lark boutique hotel group. 59 Province Lands Rd, 5084139820, awolhotel.com. Photo: Read McKendree.

A man with short hair, wearing a dark hoodie and pants, is sitting on a sandy beach. He is looking towards the camera with a slight smile. The background shows a vast expanse of sand dunes under a warm, golden sunset sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating long shadows and a soft glow. In the distance, there are dark silhouettes of hills or mountains.

GREEN SPACES

Provincetown has a new waterfront park. The town purchased a primey-situated parking lot at 387-395a Commercial from a private owner. As yet undeveloped, it's there for you to enjoy. It's behind East End Books, so, grab yourself something to read or eat and enjoy a gorgeous view of the harbor and our iconic wharf.

BACK ON THE CHAIN STORE GANG

After contentious local debate on social media over formula store invasions, we now have a CVS. If we have to explain what a CVS is, then you live in a smaller town than we do. Find it center of town at 132 Bradford.

The Crown & Anchor Restaurant's Rick Murray: "Homemade pasta with freshly-shucked local lobster meat, spicy marinara sauce, garlic, and basil mascarpone make our Lobster Pappardelle a town favorite."

The Red Inn's Philip Mossy

says: "Creole and citrus-seasoned Long Island duck is roasted, smoked, deboned and stuffed back into the skin, baked until crispy, topped with an orange peppercorn glaze, served with savory vegetable French bread stuffing."

Tin Pan Alley's Paul Melanson:

Try our "melt-in-your-mouth, freshly-shucked Panko Oysters, crusted and flash-fried with pickled vegetables and lemon beurre blanc."

Cafe Heaven's Quinn Taylor and Josh Scaturro agree: "Our blueberry pancakes and Heavenly made corned beef hash are life-changing."

Canteen's Rob Anderson tells us, "With a new full bar in our oceanside backyard, the Canteen has cocktails, beer, wine and cider alongside our signature frosé. Try our new Applewood bacon BLTs, and s'mores tarts for dessert."

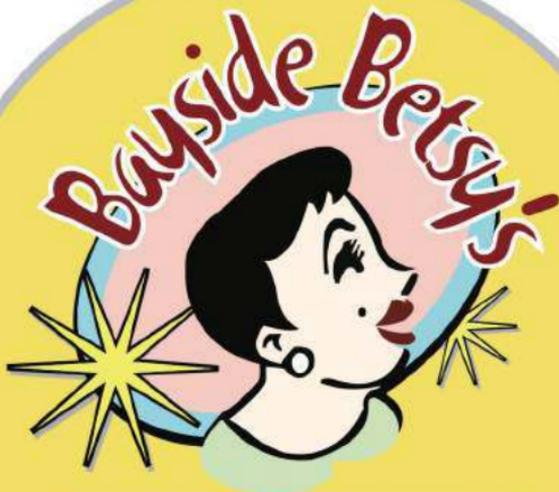

Provincetown Brewing Company's Chris Hartley:

"Try our Bearded Mistress pale ale with Fried Fish Escovich (snapper) and fried plantains, Fried Pickle Chips, or Jerk Chicken Salad Sliders.

Relish's Frank Vasello says "We're well known for our ice cold tomato, cucumber, and pepper gazpacho, with a little jalapeño blended just so. We sell out often!"

Tennessee Williams and the War Years

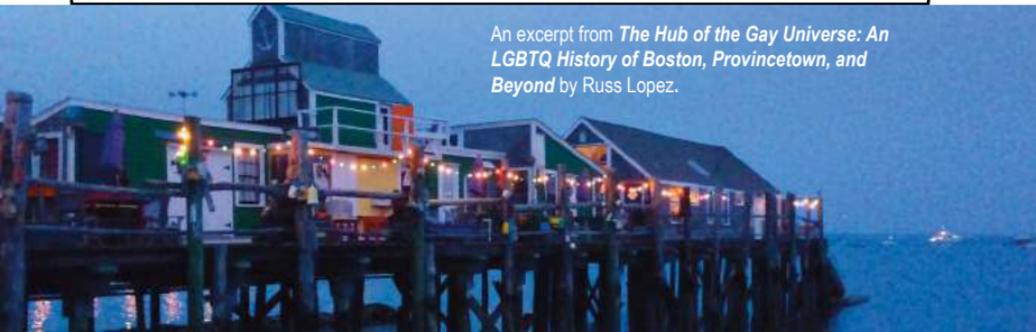

Life in the '40s in Provincetown included writers, sailors, booze, the beach, and tales of sexual intrigue.

The war also transformed Provincetown as the Navy based a large number of ships directly offshore with the sailors adding to the party atmosphere. The great playwright Tennessee Williams first lived in Provincetown in summer of 1940.

He had been searching for a place to write where he could swim during the day and find men for sex at night. Asking around, friends suggested Provincetown. After trying out a few places, he settled on Number 6 Captain Jack's Wharf at 73A Commercial St. It had been converted into living spaces two decades earlier and in the 1940s, the rooms (all without heat or plumbing) could be rented by the week.

Williams moved into the old smokehouse with two other men, the heterosexual Joe Hazan, a handsome model for the painter, Hans Hoffman, and Kip Kiernan (real name Bernard Dubowski) with whom Williams would fall passionately and tempestuously in love. The three split the rent ($20 per week) between them.

Williams had a Rockefeller scholarship that paid him $100 per month. After paying for his New York sublet, he was left with just $2 per day for expenses. But living was cheap in Provincetown that summer. Williams often was given food by fisherman and when he had to buy provisions, they cost pennies. He rented a bicycle so he could ride to Race Point and Herring Cove, then called New Beach.

“The town is screaming with creatures not all of whom are seagulls.” — Tennessee Williams

Williams and Hazan liked the naked stretches beyond the tourist parts of the beach and there are a number of photographs of Williams in the nude. But the main attraction was sex. “Offering a glimpse of Provincetown’s 1940 summer options, Williams noted that he was enamored with a ballet dancer; courted by a musician, a dancing instructor, and a language professor.”

Williams found Provincetown “dominated by a platinum blond Hollywood belle named Doug and a bulldike named Wanda who is a well known writer under a male pen name, the most raffish and fantastic crew that I have met yet and even I – excessively broad minded as I am – feel somewhat shocked by the goings on.”

TALK OF OUR TOWN

HIGH ON HOLLYWOOD

Starz TV is filming its new drama Hightown here this summer. The pilot begins Carnival weekend when a body washes ashore and is found by Jackie Quiñones, a hard-partying lesbian fisheries officer (played by Monica Raymund) determined to solve the murder and also save a young woman caught up in the Cape's opioid epidemic. It's the most extensive Hollywood filming in town since Norman Mailer's Tough Guys Don't Dance in the mid-1980s.

NEW BEACH

The 208 space parking lot at Herring Cove Beach tumbled into the bay last winter thanks to years of erosion and heavy storms. A construction project to move it further from the water and raise the elevation began last fall, but Trump's government shutdown halted work for weeks, causing concern that access to the popular beach might be lost come summertime. Looks like it'll be ready by July 4 with a landscaped makeover. Planners say the $3.3 million project is built to last for 50 years, but time will tell. Mother Nature often has her own plans.

BOOTEDGEEDGE

The political event of the season takes place on July 5 when South Bend, Indiana Mayor and presidential hopeful Pete Buttigieg comes to town for a fundraiser and rally at Town Hall. Boston event planner Bryan Rafanelli is organizing the event, at the height of the holiday tourist season. Mayor Pete and his husband Chasten will be the biggest political duo to hit town since Hillary Clinton and Cher appeared together in 2016. Let the clamoring for tickets begin.

PROVINCETOWN 400

Did you know the Mayflower first landed in Provincetown before the Pilgrims went on to settle Plymouth several weeks later? 2020 marks the 400th anniversary of that landing. A massive replica of the famous ship, the Mayflower II, will sail here that September, and plans are underway for reenactments, concerts, a fireworks display, a legacy time capsule, and massive commemorations. A Sunrise toast and bon voyage will send the ship back to Plymouth.

SOCIAL CLIMBER

Plans for a funicular that will take visitors from Bas Relief Park opposite Town Hall up to the Pilgrim Monument have been put on hold after a neighbor said it would have adverse effects on the value of his property. Debate over the privately-funded cable car transport has been active, with advocates arguing it would provide a valuable “front door” to the monument and opponents worrying about noise, breakdowns, and aesthetics.

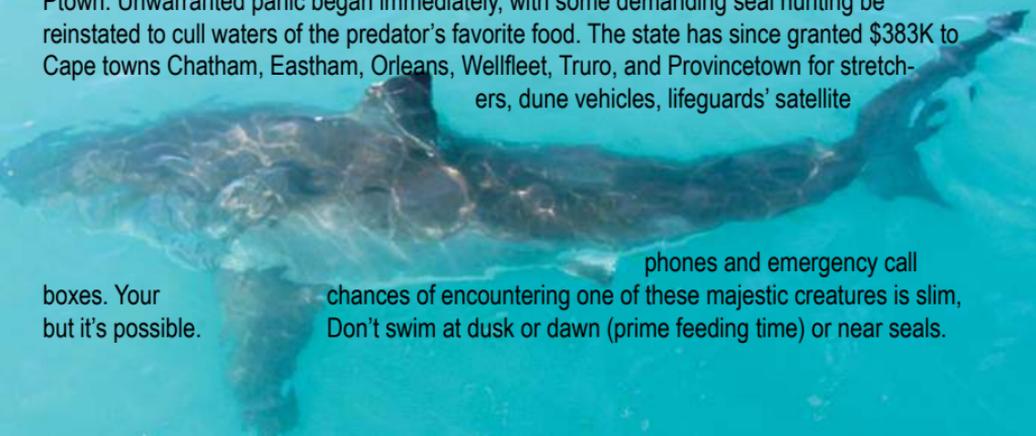

IN OUR WATERS

A fatal Great White Shark attack took place last September in Wellfleet, a few miles from Ptown. Unwarranted panic began immediately, with some demanding seal hunting be reinstated to cull waters of the predator's favorite food. WHAT'S UP BUD?

The inside dope on cannabis in Massachusetts.

Massachusetts is the first state east of the Mississippi to legalize recreational marijuana for ages 21 and up. Ptown will likely get its first dispensary this summer.

Cannabinoids (THC, CBD, CBN), the active ingredients in weed, are used in combination in marijuana products such as flower (bud), vapes, tinctures, edibles, and balms to produce varying effects.

THC: Psychoactive, responsible for getting you “high”.

CBD: Nonpsychoactive, helpful with pain relief, anxiety.

CBN: Psychoactive, resulting from degraded THC, can cause drowsiness.

Sativa and Indica are the two main strains of marijuana, with the former having cerebral, uplifting effects while the latter is more sedative and relaxing.

This is the law: Adults can possess one ounce of marijuana on them with no more than 5 grams in concentrate form. Adults can have 10 ounces in their homes, but any amount over one ounce must be locked up. Adults can also grow up to six plants in their home in an area with a lock, in a spot where they are not visible from a public area. You can't consume or smoke marijuana products in public or in cars, or have an unsealed container with product in the car.

Race Point and Herring Cove beaches are part of the Cape Cod National Seashore and so if you decide to light up there, you'll do so under the jurisdiction of federal authorities.

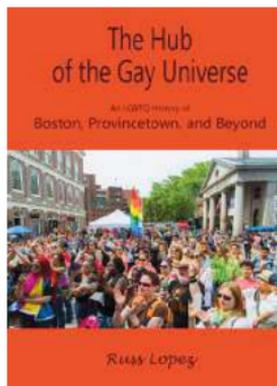

The race is on between competing dispensaries to be first to get licenses approved and open up shop, and these companies have made leasing commitments here in town.

The History of Provincetown by Susan Baker (Verve Editions)
A time capsule, it captures the explosive, eclectic character of '90s Ptown expressed through Baker's charming, colorful art (and you might recognize a few folks, if you were here back then).

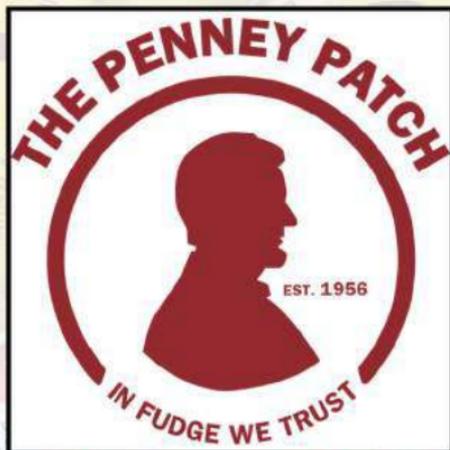

Provincetown Through Time by Frank Muzzy (Vols 13) (America Through Time)
Muzzy has built a pictorial then-and-now historical record of the town's most familiar buildings and spots by taking famous old shots and recreating them in the modern day. A wonderful photo collection.

The Watch at Peaked Hill: Outer Cape Dune Shack Life, 1953-2003 by Josephine Breen Del Deo. (Schiffer)
Del Deo died in 2016 but her legacy lives on in the Cape Cod National Seashore, which she fought to preserve for the ages. This treasure is a chronicle of that fight, and a history of the seashore's dune shack settlements, a few of which still remain.

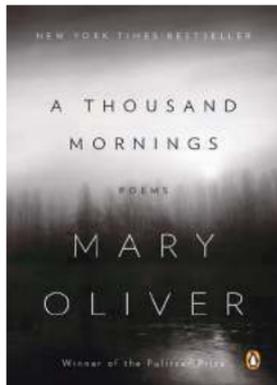

Provincetown as a Stage by Leona Rust Egan (Parnassus Imprints)
Provincetown is the birthplace of American theater and Egan's book chronicles the climate in which artists and writers lifted O'Neill and others to great dramatic heights, and reveals why it could only have happened here.

After fighting over a Yale freshman, Williams and the belle spent the night together. Williams thrived on a combination of alcohol, the beach, and writing while the large numbers of gay men helped his mood. He wrote a friend that "[t]he town is screaming with creatures not all of whom are seagulls." Sometimes, however, he would turn bitter. "Pox on all of them – their Lord & Taylor T-shirts, flowered sarongs, baby blue silk shorts! Portuguese natives have been beating them up on the streets at night lately and I am not sure which side I am on." Yet he would return to Provincetown several more times.

Even before the war, Provincetown was known (at least in some circles) for its LGBTQ drag balls. In 1928, for example, Eugene O'Neil remarked that Provincetown was full of gays, and drag queens were big later in the 1930s. Thus, it is not surprising that Williams attended a drag party, though he went in men's clothing.

YARDARM LIQUORS

MERCHANTS OF FINE SPIRITS

During the war the entire town was blacked out at night, so when going into the A-House, one entered through two sets of curtains. Inside there was dancing, sometimes to live music. Heavily gay but not yet officially so, both men and women went. "Sometimes the first thing that greeted you was the sight of Madame Pumpnickel, the elderly midget who occasionally played piano for the house band." In a later visit, Williams lived in Mayflower Heights and in order to avoid a jealous lover, he would take men he picked up at the A-House to the beach for sex. This was how he first met Frank Merlo, the love of his life.

Williams wrote The Glass Menagerie and A Streetcar Named Desire in Provincetown but not (as rumored) at the A House. Rather, he wrote on the outskirts of town. Williams finished The Glass Menagerie in the Harvard Law School dormitory room of a man he met in Provincetown. The student was tall, gangly, dark-haired and a beatnik before the trend took off. He said he was straight but easily succumbed to Williams's attentions and by the time the play was finished he was full-on gay. By the end of World War II, there were four main groups of LGBTQ people in Provincetown: the partying visitors, the artists, the outsiders who moved in year round, and the born in town group. All got along just fine.
